

3 Lessons to Keep in Mind from the U.S. ELD Mandate

with FSS Field Service Solutions

So you don't get stuck in your deployment travels

When the U.S. Mandate deadline was rapidly approaching, businesses started to scramble to find an effective ELD provider. In fact, some businesses soon realized that the provider they had chosen was not actually a good fit for their fleet!

AssetWorks has put together on some tips we've learned from the U.S. ELD Mandate, so you don't get lost in your deployment journey.

Lesson #1

Avoid the Scramble

When the U.S. announced the ELD Mandate, many businesses and vendors scrambled to get certified at the last minute. This led to businesses choosing a vendor that didn't fit their needs or missed the deadline completely.

Give yourself enough time to choose a vendor that fits your needs and can implement the technology on time.

Lesson #2

Choose an Internal Champion

Appoint someone within your organization to take charge of deployment activities. Having someone in the supporting role during the transition, will go a long way. The role will help answer possible questions from drivers or employees about the ELD Mandate and hour of service (HOS) rules.

This role will help your organization's deployment move forward in a timely manner.

Lesson #3

Full Understanding of HOS and the ELD Mandate

The ELD Mandate is a lot of information. You and your champion will need to have a good understanding of what the mandate entails and all the HOS rules. Canada's Mandate has many similarities but might have different rule sets depending on the industry and location.

Give yourself enough working time to fully understand these two items!
